

It is the personal choice of individuals to permit or deny people access into their home. Those people of New Jersey who have elected to deny telemarketers access into their home have made their choice. Others have opted not to be on the do not call list. But to say that all people must allow others into their home against their will is tantamount to endorsing forced entry in my opinion. If it is what those people have chosen, let them be. Thank you.